How can St. David’s protect our more vulnerable community members?
St. David's own Dr. Robyn McCarty suggested these best practices for reducing the spread of infectious disease at church:

- Stay home when ill
- Wash hands thoroughly and frequently for 10-20 seconds
- Cover coughs and sneezes
- Avoid touching one’s face (eyes, nose, mouth) with unwashed hands
- Wash hands AFTER touching face
- Refrain from shaking hands or hugging
- Don't be offended if people offer friendly waves or elbow bumps instead of handshakes

What about the common cup?
Peer reviewed studies and Centers for Disease Control guidance (since the 1980s) have consistently shown that "no documented transmission of any infectious disease has ever been traced to the use of a common communion cup" and "the risk for infectious disease transmission by a common communion cup is very low, and appropriate safeguards--that is, wiping the interior and exterior rim between communicants, use of care to rotate the cloth during use, and use of a clean cloth for each service - would further diminish this risk." American Journal of Infection Control (Vol. 26, No. 5, 1998).

At St. David’s, our Eucharistic Ministers are trained to wipe the rim of the chalice between each communicant, to rotate the purificator (the cloth), and the Altar Guild ensures a clean cloth is used for each liturgy. Eucharistic Ministers and clergy use hand sanitizer before communion.

Is it more sanitary to intinct the host or to drink from the cup?
Intinction (dipping the host in the chalice) is less sanitary because fingers touch either the consecrated wine or the side of the chalice. Therefore, no more intinction.

Is it ok not to receive the cup?
Yes, because the church believes that all of the grace of the sacrament of the Eucharist is conferred wholly in each element - both consecrated bread and wine. To receive only the host is not to have a "half blessing" or to receive "half communion." Instead, receiving in one kind is to fully partake in the Eucharistic feast.

To help you remember: sip, skip, but don't dip
St. David’s is committed to being a place of welcome and connection for all people. The following folks have recently become a part of St. David’s, so let’s extend a welcome and help them get connected to our wonderful community!
